

BTEC HND in Computing & Systems Development

- Software Application Development
- Games and Multimedia Development
- Information Security and Cloud Computing

Programme Structure

BTEC HND in Computing and Systems Development is a 4 semester programme composed of 16 modules or units conducted for a period of 18 months. A student must complete all 16 modules to qualify for the HND award.

The programme consists of three areas of specialization:

- Software Application Development
- Games and Multimedia Development
- Information Security and Cloud Computing

Students are free to select their area of specialization and follow modules relevant to that area of specialization.

Award

At the end of successful completion of the programme, students will be awarded "BTEC HND in Computing and Systems Development" whatever the area of specialization chosen.

Assessments

The focus of HND is on practice. All the students are evaluated through different assessment methods in each unit. Students work on a final individual project where their complete knowledge and skills is tested. Assessments are evaluated by BCAS within the framework provided by Edexcel.
